

Tentative Agreement

Discipline

In the event there is an investigation of a nurse which lasts two weeks after the nurse is made aware of the investigation, the employer must provide an update to the nurse and to the MNA representative or coworker present at the investigative meeting including; the reason for any and all delays; that status of the investigation, a timeframe for completion, and identification of any barriers that prevented completion. This update must be given every seven days thereafter until the investigation is completed.
